Dear President Obama,

As health reform legislation moves forward, Prevention Institute, a national organization committed to preventing illness and injury and fostering health and equity, urges you to ensure that strong provisions for community prevention are included in the legislation. Community prevention is a fundamental component of a successful comprehensive health reform approach.

A comprehensive health framework that emphasizes prevention and wellness can significantly alleviate the social and financial costs associated with sickness and health care by keeping people from getting sick and injured in the first place. Community prevention enables the health care system to run more effectively by reducing the burden on emergency departments, clinical and in-patient care. A study we authored with Trust for America's Health and the Urban Institute shows that a small $10 per capita investment in community prevention can save more than $16 billion annually in health care costs within the first five years.

Both the Senate HELP Committee's Affordable Health Choices Act and the House Tri-Committee's America's Affordable Health Choices Act would establish Community Transformation Grants to address the community level factors that support health and equity. This program should be maintained in the bill in order to support community efforts to engage in quality prevention. The bills establish a Prevention and Public Health Fund to make sure that health reform not only improves health care access and quality but also invests in improving America's health. These bills also include the establishment of a National Prevention and Wellness Strategy, which signals high level inter-agency commitment to supporting communities that foster health and equity.

As preventable illnesses and injuries are the most significant drivers of increasing health care costs, it is essential that we reorient our health care system from an after-the-fact approach to one that focuses on keeping people healthy in the first place. As an organization engaged with numerous successful community, philanthropic, and government prevention initiatives around the country, we have seen the value and vitality of prevention and equity efforts in improving health across racial, ethnic, and socioeconomic lines.

We urge you to communicate your support for meaningful prevention provisions, including Community Transformation Grants, a National Prevention and Health Promotion Strategy, and a Prevention and Public Health Fund, with Congressional leadership.

Sincerely,
Prevention Institute
